See possible answers in the Teacher's Book.

my sister and me

Feb. 10 4:56

We look the same, but we don't like the same things! Violet studies classical music, but I study art. She reads novels and poems, but I don't read much. And she often watches TV, but I never watch TV – it doesn't interest me. Violet writes poems. I write messages on my cell phone. I love hip-hop. She says that hip-hop annoys her. But do we argue or do we spend time together? We always spend time together, of course! We like different things, but we are still best friends!

Where are all the couch potatoes?

By Ann Taylor

1 d Parents and teachers say that teenagers are “couch potatoes” and spend all their time in front of silly TV shows. But is it true that young people really watch a lot of TV?

2 b The results of a recent survey show that people in the UK typically watch twenty-seven and a half hours of TV every week – almost four hours a day! But there is some surprising news – young people don't watch as much TV as adults. For example, middle-aged adults (aged forty-five to sixty-five) watch about five hours a day. But young people aged twelve to seventeen watch about two and a half hours a day. And an older person watches about six hours a day!

3 a Studies in countries such as the USA and Australia suggest the same: kids today spend less time in front of the TV than young people in the 1980s.

4 e Teenagers today don't often sit with their families on the living room couch. So where are they? Do they spend all their free time outdoors, away from the TV? The simple answer is no, they don't. They're still watching series and movies – around thirty-one hours a week! So, what's different now? Well, now they're online! Watching series and movies on streaming apps installed on cell phones and tablets is now one of the most popular free-time activities for teenagers. The couch potato is alive and well – he's just back in his bedroom.

8 The survey in the magazine article shows that adults watch a lot of TV. In groups, talk about how much TV you and your family watch. Students' own answers.
I don't watch TV very often, but my sister watches TV every night.
